

How do I choose a visor?

Get adequate sun protection: Protecting your skin and eyes from the sun is the most important function of a visor, after all. Dr. Amin recommends looking for SPF rated visors to help narrow down your options. Plus, the rim size can also be a factor, as Dr. Shirazi says she doesn't recommend a visor with a brim that measures less than 3 to 6 inches.

How do I find the perfect sun visor?

When it comes to searching for the perfect sun visor, it is necessary to first consider a few important details. Cindy Conroy, a fashion expert and TV host, says to look for at least one of these three features while you shop: "Look for a moisture-wicking sweatband.

Are sun visors good?

It can stand up to any activity," Conroy says. Appelt agrees that "the best materials for sun visors are lightweight, breathable, and offer good UV protection." She also recommends acrylic visors for a modern look and visors with UPF 50+ for better protection against the sun's harmful rays.

What should you look for in a visor?

Kim Appelt, a celebrity fashion stylist and author of "Style for Everybody: A Guide to Curating Your Essential Wardrobe," also places emphasis on coverage and sun blockage. "Look for a visor with a wide brim for the best sun protection, adjustable fit for comfort, and durability," says Appelt.

How do you wear a sun visor?

There are a variety of ways to style your sun visor, according to Appelt. "For a boat trip or a casual day in the city, wear your acrylic visor with a breezy summer dress or high-waisted shorts and a tucked-in blouse," she recommends. "Add a pair of espadrilles and a crossbody bag to keep the look stylish yet practical," Appelt suggests.

What is the best sun visor for hot weather?

If you're looking for the perfect sun visor for hot weather, a breathable, lightweight material is best to help keep cool (in addition to a moisture-wicking headband). "Raffia, straw and cotton sun visors are exactly what's called for on sweltering hot summer days," suggests Conroy.

Choose a more tightly woven fabric (3% or 5%) for less visibility, more privacy, better energy efficiency and a higher degree of light control. Go with a looser weaver (12 or 14%) for maximum visibility and significant glare reduction. 7% to 10% is the most popular openness range for the perfect balance of features and functionalities.
