

What kind of battery does a string trimmer use?

For most users, a string trimmer with a lithium-ion battery will be the best choice. Along with battery type, consider how much operating power the battery has, which is measured in volts. Today's rechargeable string trimmer batteries range from 18V to 80V of power.

What kind of battery does a grass trimmer use?

It comes equipped with a 36V 4 Ah lithium-ion battery and a bump-advance string trimmer head that works with either 0.095- or 0.105-inch weed eater string. This battery grass trimmer features a variable-speed throttle trigger and a loop handle with a quick-release function for fast, tool-free adjustments.

How much does a string trimmer battery cost?

Today's rechargeable string trimmer batteries range from 18V to 80V of power. More powerful batteries at the high end often are intended for commercial use and can cost $200 or more per battery. Some string trimmers in this category are sold without a battery (or battery charger), so the user must purchase one separately.

What is a Ryobi battery Trimmer?

Ryobi has an attachment for virtually every outdoor need--such as a hedge trimmer, rubber broom, pole saw, blower, and a mini cultivator--and all attach to the string trimmer handle, making this one of the most versatile trimmers around. Get the Ryobi battery trimmer at The Home Depot.

What kind of battery does a straight-shaft Trimmer use?

Driven by a brushless motor, the straight-shaft trimmer is powered by a 56V 2.5 Ah lithium-ion battery that provides up to 56 minutes of powerful performance, rivaling traditional 2-cycle trimmers. It cuts a 16-inch-wide swath to get the job done efficiently.

How long does a string trimmer battery take to charge?

Most string trimmer batteries take 1 to 3 hours to charge. Battery trimmers may come with a standard, fast, or no charger -- the higher a battery's Ah, the longer the charge time. Costs vary by brand, volts, and Ah, but the average power tool battery costs $205. Most string trimmer batteries cost $60 to $350.
